ARTIST BIO: Cathy Nichols
 I decided to become an artist when I fell in love with a painting. I'd been in love before, but never with something mysteriously moving. It was abstract, yet figurative. On the bottom was a trace of glitter. This was a love- letter. Ever since reading it, I've been trying to write back. Sometimes my paintings emerge fully formed, other times, I make 'mistakes.' But I always remember the first time I tuned a guitar, the sound was most confusing right before it snapped into harmony. It's the same with paintings. And maybe even with love. When I'm finished it feels like the right thing has been spoken — something I wouldn't mind sharing with my glittery friend (or with you).
